"Corryong Hotel" 1875.

Corryong was named after the Kuriong pastoral run, taken up in 1839 by a pastoralist from New South Wales. It is thought that the name was derived from Aboriginal expressions referring to red body painting clay or a possum skin garment. The Corryong Hotel was established in 1875. The first building built in Corryong. J.A McVean built the weatherboard hotel on it's current site and ran it till 1889. The chimney in the photo is still present today.

The Hotel was unfortunately destroyed by fire in 1909. It was rebuilt and run by Matilda Julia Schintler in 1909, Robert James Robertson in 1910 and Edward Knight in 1911-1918.

After almost a century, the hotel has undergone many changes as well as owners. Currently Wendy and Peter (Pockets) welcome you to enjoy a "coldie" in their hotel/motel! Enjoy.....
